"Top 10 New Resort Courses in the World" - Golf Magazine

The par 71 Heathland course is one of designer Tom Doak's earliest gems. It takes you back in time when golf courses were created with an artistic touch and the natural contours of the land dictated the flow of the course. You'll find holes reminiscent of familiar links, like St. Andrews, and lesser known courses like Lahinch and Cruden Bay. Windswept hills and deep-faced bunkers are just a few of the challenges that await each player. Enjoy a taste of the old world in the new world. Golf Digest rated Heathland ★★★★★ 1/2 stars and Golf Magazine rated it in the "Top 10 New Resort Courses in the World."

 "Top Five New Public Courses in America" - Golf Digest

Moorland, considered one of the strongest challenges along the Grand Strand, was designed by noted golf course architect P.B. Dye and is reminiscent of PGA West's Stadium Course. Dye's flair for deep bunkers, multi-level fairways and greens, as well as signature bulkheads have transformed this land into one of the area's most requested courses. Created in the Dye tradition, Moorland will challenge golfers to rise to astonishing heights on the sculpted terrain and sink to incredible depths in the bunkers. Golf Digest crowned Moorland one of the "Top Five New Public Courses in America" and gave it ★★★★★ 1/2 in "Places to Play."

★★★★ 1/2 - Golf Digest's "Places to Play"

Parkland, modeled after the style of architects Alister MacKenzie (Augusta National) and George Thomas (Riviera Country Club), was designed to complement nature so closely that it makes the layout indistinguishable from nature itself.

Parkland demonstrates the diversity and beauty of the natural terrain with contoured, tree-lined fairways, vast natural areas, deep-faced bunkers and massive multi-level greens. Virtually every hole is worthy of careful consideration to be its signature hole, as each one is more dramatic than the one before. The end result is a continuous series of sensational holes that leave you craving more. Golf Digest rated Parkland ★★★★★ 1/2 in "Places to Play."

★★★★ 1/2 - Golf Digest's "Places to Play"

Your day at the Heritage Club is a trip back in time. Built on two of South Carolina's historic plantations along the scenic Waccamaw River, the Heritage Club is a traditional favorite of Grand Strand golfers. Over 600 acres of giant live oaks, freshwater lakes and marshes have been transformed into a golf course that rivals any course in the Southeast.

Recently honored by Golf Digest as #46 in the "Top 100 Public Courses in America" for 2007 - 2008 and rated ★★★★★ 1/2 in "Places to Play," the Heritage Club, a par 71, is a mixture of pure Southern charm and hospitality. It is a "must play" on your next trip.

★★★★ 1/2 - Golf Digest's "Places to Play"

For over twenty years, Oyster Bay has been a favorite choice for Myrtle Beach golfers. Why? Oyster Bay combines a rare, harmonious blend of the penal, heroic and strategic philosophies of golf course architecture. This challenging course is exceptionally fair, a course where variety and innovation are the names of the game and no two holes are the same.

Golf Digest rated Oyster Bay ★★★★★ 1/2 in "Places to Play" and ranked it the "Best New Resort Course of the Year." The par 70 course plays to just under 6,700 yards, however, its cavernous bunkers, wickedly undulating greens and lengthy par 4's make Oyster Bay a true test of one's mettle.

The TPC, or Tournament Players Club, of Myrtle Beach gives all of its golfers the opportunity to see and feel what it is like to be inside the ropes of a tour caliber course. The course was designed by acclaimed architect Tom Fazio and hosted the Senior Tour Championship. The TPC of Myrtle Beach is a unique experience that affords you the privilege of testing your game on the same course where some of golf's greatest figures have played. Enjoy perfectly groomed fairways and greens while venturing through towering pines and expansive wetlands. After your round, relax in our luxurious clubhouse and reflect on your experience of being treated like a pro.

Golf Digest rated TPC ★★★★★ in "Places to Play" and in 2005 it was chosen as the "South Carolina Golf Course of the Year" by the South Carolina Golf Course Owners Association.
